Check!

What kind of city is Hokota?

Located in southeastern Ibaraki Prefecture, Hokota City is surrounded by the Pacific Ocean, Lake Hinuma, and Lake Kitaura. The area features vast fertile plains rich in water resources and is known as one of Japan's leading agricultural regions. Hokota produces a wide variety of fruits and vegetables such as melons, strawberries, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, and mizuna greens. With its mild climate and fertile soil, agriculture is the city's main industry and plays an important role in supplying food to the Tokyo metropolitan area. In recent years, Hokota has also attracted attention as a place where people can enjoy a relaxed lifestyle by the sea.

Hokota Specialties

Melon

Thanks to the warm climate and well-drained soil, Hokota produces melons with rich sweetness and fragrant aroma.

Strawberries

Unlike rice field cultivation, Hokota strawberries are grown in specially prepared soil fields, resulting in a deep and rich flavor.

Sweet Potatoes

Grown in volcanic ash soil ideal for sweet potatoes, Hokota's sweet potatoes are known nationwide for their excellent quality and sweetness.
